

Spouse Entitlement Claim

When should I use this form?

If your spouse had a State or Police account when they passed away, you can use this form to claim a benefit. You can choose if you'd like to claim the benefit as a lump sum, as income payments, or as a combination of both.

➡ If you spot this symbol, head to page 3 to read the Important notes.

Also be sure to check out the Additional information about the form (also on page 3) to make sure you have all the info you need so payment of your benefit can go ahead.

4 Documents

Before we can pay a spouse entitlement, we need certified copies of the below documents. Please tick if you've attached these documents with this form.

Death certificate (full copy, front and back).

Your birth certificate (short or extract copy, front and back).

Marriage certificate or civil partnership certificate (full copy).

Children's birth certificate (where applicable, front and back).

If you're signing as a power of attorney and you haven't already given us a certified copy of your power of attorney documentation, please attach it to this form. And make sure you attach certified copies of your and the spouse's identification documents.

5 Your banking details

I want QSuper to pay the benefit into my personal bank, credit union or building society account.

We can only make payments into an Australian bank, credit union or building society account that's in your name or a joint name. This means we can't make payments into a business, trust or loan account. You should know that if you provide incorrect details, there could be a delay in your payment or a loss of interest, and we can't accept responsibility for this.

Account name

Branch (BSB) number

Account number

Please make sure you give us the correct details, because if we don't have them it might delay your payment.

6 Proving your identity

There are two ways you can prove your identity; electronically or the paper method. It is important that you select Option 1 or Option 2 (by ticking below) so your identity can be verified. If an option is not selected, we may not be able to pay your claim.

Option 1 - Electronic method (not available for people currently living overseas)

If you choose to prove your identity electronically, you'll just need to tick option 1 and provide your driver licence or passport number.

By giving this information, you agree to QSuper providing your name, address and date of birth to a credit reporting agency (CRA) to check if the information matches (in whole or part) the information contained on your credit information file with the CRA. This is only so we can verify you under the Anti-Money Laundering and Counter-Terrorism Financing Act 2006 before making the payment. It doesn't give us access to other information about you and our request won't be recorded on your credit information file and the CRA can't use it for anything else. If we can't identify you in this way, we'll write to you and let you know the name of the CRA and also advise you of another way to verify your identity. To assist with the check on your identity, please provide your driver licence or passport number.

Option 2 - Paper method You can post us certified copies of your identification document as explained in the Proving Your Identity factsheet on our website.

7 Declaration

- I confirm I'm the person named on this form, or I have a power of attorney to act on the spouse's behalf.
- I ask that payment is made to me in the way I've chosen in section 3 of this form and into the bank account I've nominated in section 5.
- The information I've given on this form is true and correct.
- I'm the widowed spouse¹ of the deceased member, and we were married, in a civil partnership or in a de facto relationship at the date my spouse stopped employment with the Queensland Government, and at the time they passed away.
- I give permission for QSuper to give my tax file number to the Australian Taxation Office (if applicable).
- I've given the necessary documents as outlined in section 4 of this form.
- I've given the necessary documents as requested in section 6 of this form.

➤ Important notes

Section 3 If you're an eligible spouse, you can choose to take the death benefit as a lump sum, as income payments, or as a combination of both. Keep in mind that you need to tell us your decision within six months of your spouse passing away.

If you're choosing the part lump sum/part income payment option, you can choose to split the ratio however you want.

If you're under age 60 and choose to receive this benefit as an income stream, you'll need to fill out a Tax File Number Declaration form, which is available on our website, or call us and we'll send you a copy.

Additional information about the form

Before we pay a benefit we sometimes need to find out more information to confirm who should receive the benefit.

Death benefit payments made to dependants are exempt from tax.

¹ A spouse includes someone with who the member was in a registered relationship with, or someone they were living with on a genuine domestic basis (including a same sex relationship), at the date of both their retirement and at the time they passed away.
